5 Ways Your Life Will Be Better Abroad

How and Why You Can Solve Your Problems By Getting Out of America!

- Are you a single male fed up with the horrible dating scene and lack of social connection in America?
- Do you find it hard or impossible to meet or date any decent quality single women in America?
- Do you prefer sweet feminine genuine women over independent masculine women who don't need you?
- Do you feel alienated by America's fake, inauthentic, toxic, soulless, superficial culture and people?
- Are you fed up with the high cost of living in America, its overly inflated prices, and unhealthy food/lifestyle?
- Do you feel like America is trying to destroy, corrupt or torture your soul? Is it making you go crazy?

If so, I've got Great News for you: The problem is NOT you and there is a Real Solution! I'm Winston Wu, Founder of HappierAbroad.com. In 2002 I made the greatest discovery of my life, which was that: I could solve all the problems above by simply GETTING OUT of America! That's it! It's very simple yet very taboo, because we are taught by western culture to blame ourselves for our problems and stay in our own culture to try to work things out. Therefore I have a great message and life-changing secret to share with YOU: If you go abroad to one of the many authentic saner foreign cultures, you will have: A better social life, dating and love life, mental health, physical health and food, lower cost of living and more freedom! That's it. No joke. That's 5 major areas of life that will be greatly improved by leaving America! 5 huge benefits of going abroad. This is the greatest Secret that America doesn't want you to know! Let me explain.

1. Social Life, Social Culture and Friendships

America's social culture is isolating, lonely, and extremely lacking in social connection and authenticity. The social atmosphere and vibe feel highly negative, toxic and uptight, as well as isolating, lonely and disconnected. There is no social connection or social harmony with others. It's so hard to make any real friends or to even have healthy social contact. There is this weird tension between people that isn't there in most other cultures. People don't talk to strangers unless it's business-related. They are paranoid, uptight and cliquish. Most don't even know their neighbors. Friendships are superficial and more like acquaintances. Everyday life is stressful and demanding, with too many rules and regulations, yet feels empty and meaningless. All that matters is making money and consumerism -- which is supposed to fulfill you but does not. American culture is largely based on BS, phoniness, hype, illusion, exaggeration and self-delusion. You've got to be a poser to adapt. If you are authentic or have a soul, you will be alienated and out-of-place. People are too fake, arrogant and egotistical, making them very hard to get along with. Modern Americans seem cold, emotionless and soulless, as depicted in modern TV/movies -- which if contrasted with that of the 1970's and prior, reveal a shocking difference in the authenticity of emotions and characters. America's moral values have degenerated greatly since the 1950's, as can be seen from its media/pop culture.

In many other countries: The social atmosphere is more open, natural and inclusive, and people are more authentic and down-to-earth. It is easier to meet people and talking to strangers feels more natural and relaxed. Making friends is easier and comes more naturally. Friendships are truer and families are closer. People are more genuine and alive, with real emotions and souls. Thus YOU feel more alive as well. There is real connection and camaraderie with others. Happiness is shared and social harmony is emphasized, placing group cooperation over competition. You never feel isolated or truly alone, even when you are physically alone. People are humble, modest, and down-to-earth, not arrogant or fake, so they are easier to get along with than Americans. You notice this right when you get off the plane overseas after leaving America.

2. Women, Dating and Relationships

America's dating scene is the worst for men -- excessively difficult, problematic, unnatural and unfriendly. American women are generally unfriendly, unapproachable and spoiled with toxic personalities. They are very closed, uptight and paranoid with a cold shield. Being arrogant, narcissistic and self-absorbed, along with having a bad attitude, they are extremely hard to connect with. Since they don't need men and have too many choices, they've become super picky or prefer to be alone. They have no interest in nice normal good men. Nice guys are treated like dirt. Every desirable female is either taken, too picky, too young or not looking. Every girl you ask out claims to have a boyfriend (even if they don't). There are more dateless men than in any other country. Single men seem to outnumber single women. Women are masculinized and men are feminized, inverting both genders against their nature, thus ruining normal male/female relationships. Feminism has conditioned women to believe that they don't need men, whereas men still need women, thus creating imbalance and inequality (ironically). Women are conditioned to harbor deep hatred and contempt for men, viewing them as fools, creeps and predators. Thus their attitude is very anti-male. Flirtation with women is a taboo, considered creepy and violating. The divorce rate is among the highest in the world. Overall, the US dating scene is a NO WIN situation for many single men.

In many other countries: Females are feminine, sweet, genuine and down-to-earth, so dating and relationships come more naturally. Thus foreign females are much easier to meet, connect with, befriend and date. They are more friendly, approachable, good-natured and exude genuine warmth. And they are generally thin and look wholesome. They cherish their femininity and appreciate good men, so they seek a partner, not a competitor. Nice guys are appreciated and valued because niceness counts. Flirtation with women creates energy and excitement. Women are flattered by compliments and girls still giggle and blush because they are feminine. Quality single women are in abundance abroad, not in scarcity like in America. In China, for instance, virtually all females are super feminine, and most are attractive and down-to-earth, the ideal package! In contrast, nearly all women in modern America are masculine, and most are not attractive. Not surprisingly, American men who date overseas usually say that they NEVER want to deal with American women again. It has almost become a cliché.

3. Mental Health, Psychology and Freedom To Be Yourself

America's toxic fake culture undermines your mental health and personality. People are conditioned to feel insecure and inadequate to the core. No one feels accepted for who they are. They constantly grapple with self-esteem issues and always feel they have to prove themselves. To compensate, people develop big egos, brag, act tough and arrogant, become assholes, or lose it and go crazy, resulting in toxic personalities, deep insecurity and inferiority complexes. The fake culture requires you to become a phony poser to fit in, thus creating an internal schism from your true self, which degrades your mental health and psyche. Not surprisingly, America has the highest rates of mental illness and psychiatric drug use in the world, as well as the biggest mental health industry. In fact, the World Health Organization has reported that if you live in America you have a 50 percent chance of developing a mental disorder! What's worse, the vibe in America feels like it's trying to destroy your soul or corrupt it, so if you try to retain your soul, you will feel tortured and suffer.

In many other countries: The social culture is authentic and natural and allows you to be yourself. Since the people and culture are more genuine, you feel accepted and free to be your real self, which is very liberating, since no freedom is greater than the freedom to be yourself. You don't have to grapple with "self-esteem" and "confidence" issues, at least not in the pseudo way that you do in America. Thus you develop a normal healthy personality with much less psychological baggage. People have real friends/family to talk to about their problems. So no one needs to see a therapist or psychiatrist, just as no one did in past history before the modern industrial age which mechanized us and robbed our souls.

4. Physical Health and Food

America is a very unhealthy nation with the highest rates of obesity, cancer, diabetes and heart disease in the world. Everyone knows America is the fattest nation. Its food contains too many unhealthy processed ingredients, harmful toxins, GMO's (genetically modified organisms) and fluoridated water. Trying to eat healthy at organic health stores is too complicated and expensive. Not only is food addictive, but Americans overeat to fill their emptiness and void as well, since they have no true social connection or authentic lives to fulfill them. People drive everywhere and don't walk enough.

In many other countries: People are healthier and thinner, which is easily visible and well documented. Food is healthier and more natural and organic. In Europe for example, mainstream food is already healthy so there is no need for health food stores. My friends and I have all lost significant weight in China, Russia and Europe. So when you eat abroad, you will be healthier and lose weight. It's the biggest weight loss secret that the US nutrition industry doesn't want you to know (because there's no profit in it). People abroad also walk more because there is better public transportation, so they get more exercise. Moreover, foreign cultures are less toxic and more authentic which is better for your better mental health, as explained earlier, which results in better physical health as well since there is a proven mind-body connection.

5. Cost of Living and Healthcare

America's cost of living and prices are higher than in most countries. This forces people to work ever more for less, and become debt slaves with little or no freedom or free time. Prices on everything are overly inflated due to the inflation caused by the fraudulent fiat money system created by the private central banks (Federal Reserve). Healthcare and medical costs are ridiculously expensive, and are the #1 cause of bankruptcies. America is the only developed nation with no universal healthcare, because it places profit over health, which is insane. You have to "live to work" rather than "work to live".

In many other countries: Cost of living is lower and more affordable, allowing people more freedom and leisure time. Prices are more reasonable and affordable, which gives you more purchasing power. There are many ways to live cheaply abroad. Universal healthcare is provided in all other developed nations, including those with low income taxes such as Taiwan. But even in countries without it, healthcare is still cheap or affordable. (See the Michael Moore documentary "Sicko")

Conclusion

So overall, America is highly toxic and detrimental to one's mind, body, soul and social relationships. But as you know, you cannot change your society or culture. It's much easier to buy a plane ticket. Therefore, our solution of simply GETTING OFF the "sinking ship" of America makes perfect logical sense. We know that once you go abroad and experience all this, your life will change forever! Our site provides abundant material -- in the form of articles, photos, videos, podcasts, testimonials, trip reports, blogs, ebooks and an online community -- that support and prove all these comparisons conclusively.
